STONEWORK PLAY

A Free & Fun Nature Play Event for Families!

WHAT IS STONEWORK PLAY?

Stonework Play is a form of creative play and learning. It engages the senses and animates imagination, allowing each person, no matter how young, to tell a story or make a unique pattern from handling and connecting with stones. It was developed by my good friend Dr. Diana Suskind and I'm thrilled to share her wonderful work (and play!) with you. - Tania Moloney, Nurture in Nature

Tania Moloney is the Founder of Nurture in Nature Australia and she is passionate about helping families connect with nature and with each other. As a dairy farmers daughter, her childhood was filled with opportunities for outdoor adventures and she made (and ate) LOTS of mud pies. She has a head and heart full of cherished childhood memories of family camping trips, building cubbies, sleeping under the stars and playing with sticks. Now with her own young family, she desperately wants those memories and experiences for her children too. As a result she has happily embraced that her kids will have perpetually dirty feet and her pockets/car/washing machine/handbag will be permanently filled with nature's treasures. And she wouldn't have it any other way!

This is a joint project of the Lismore Land Protection Group and Mount Elephant Community Management
