The 5th Annual Vintage Machinery Display

Congratulations to WPMPG for another highly successful Vintage Machinery weekend. Their 5th annual weekend was reportedly the best yet with extensive displays, great crowd numbers and the weather playing it's part (for day 1).

There were over 15 tractors on display and a dozen in the highly anticipated tractor pull. The History Group had an extensive display of excellent information and a new edition was the vintage sock making which fascinated visitors. The shearing display was also extremely popular.

In previous years, organisers have battled with weather extremes from washout rain to total fire bans but the Saturday at least was perfect conditions which made for an excellent day.

Organisers commented on the great number of kids and teens who are interested and getting involved on the day. It is great to see new Vintage Machinery enthusiasts coming up the ranks.

This event attracts visitors from all over Western Victoria and more to come to our town. What a great event to promote our town and region. Well done again to all the event organisers.

Cricket News

Lismore's season came to end with U12's team going out to Derri in the Semi Final. It was a great effort for this team who only came together last season to make it to the finals.

The Grand final between Derrinallum and Carranballac was a washout last Friday leaving Derrinallum U12's as the default winners after finishing on top of the ladder.

Lismore Oddfellows U16's made it to the semi final where they went down to Linton. The senior team this year just missed out on the finals. Haddon finished on top of the ladder for men's seniors.

A flash thunderstorm over Lismore dropped 22mm of rain along with hail the size of thumb nails last Friday. Sheets of water were flowing down the hills near the swimming pool and gutters were overflowing.

Properties only 1 -2 kilometres from town recorded between 2 - 5ml. This isolated storm helped fill some house tanks and run off even put water into some dry dams. More heavy rain is expected over the next week (at time of printing).

Local Turtles on the move!

A few millimetres of rain in early Feb after a long dry period caused a mini migration of our local Eastern long-necked turtles near Lismore recently. While these turtles are found in most of our local waterways they are most often seen by passing motorists crossing the Hamilton Highway at Hunted Gully.

When the first rain in months wet the ground recently a local resident was called by a passer-by to assist with saving turtles on the road. Six turtles were saved and moved across the road to a nearby dam. Around the same number were unfortunately already hit on the road

The Turtles move after rain for a range of reasons, primarily to forage for food, to lay eggs (Nov - Jan) or to relocate to a better habitat if their waterbody is drying up. The wet conditions trigger this movement as they can move distances over land without drying out.

If found on the road it is best to move them, if safe to do so, off the road in the direction they were going as they were likely traveling to a known location. Now that the rain has started in more earnest please keep an eye out for turtles on our roads

Flying Foxes

Flying Foxes are to currently likely be seen around Lismore and Derri on dusk.

This information is from the Little Aussie Battlers web site: Flying-foxes are keystone pollinators and seed dispersers of the Australian bush. The job of propagating over 100 species of native trees and plants falls fairly and squarely on their tiny little shoulders.

Without them, there would be no food and shelter for our koalas, no pristine habitat for our extraordinary array of native birds, and no magnificent forests for all of us to enjoy. But due to loss of habitat and climatic changes, their numbers are falling dramatically.

The Grey-Headed Flying-fox is now listed as vulnerable to extinction. This loss of natural habitat and food availability has seen them increasingly set up camp near towns in search of food and shelter, affecting residents and communities.
